'IKE · ONE THING TO REMEMBER

The angle is right. The size says stay home.

West-southwest can wake Little Point, but the groundswell is only about 2.3 ft under thicker windswell, so the sandbars win.

WHERE IT'S WORKING

1

PB Drive

Your local. Clean west-southwest, glass north wind, tide still rising. Score 0.98.

LOCAL

★

PB north of pier

Best of the morning. Same 0.98 on the pier sand. Go before the 5.4 high and the northwest breeze.

BEST

2

Tourmaline

Score 0.97 early, then it mushes toward the 5.4 high. If you go, be in before about 9. It'll be crowded.

ALT

3

Little Point

Tied at 0.98 and the angle is in the cone, but groundswell is only about 2.3 ft. Leave before ~5.5 ft, around 10a.

ALT

4

Calumet

Score 0.87. West-southwest is fine, but the tide is already high for a 0.5-3.5 window.

SOFT

Skip · PB Point is soft on this west-southwest (0.60). Cliffs aren't clearer than PB on thin ground. OB Pier wants a different wind. The evening fill comes after dark (sunset ~6:34p). Scripps and Blacks aren't local.

Go now through 10:30a. Mid tide is rising (obs 4.1 @ 6:42a, about +1.1 vs the table) toward the 5.4 high at 1:25p. Little Point wants you out by about 5.5 ft (~10a with the high anomaly). LJAC1 NNW 340° 2.9 kt @ 6:00a PT. NWS stays N ~4 kt through 9a, NW ~4 kt 10-11a, then NW ~9 kt at noon and ~13 kt mid-afternoon. Under 3 ft by ~5p, and the dusk fill is after dark (sunset ~6:34p), so no evening call.

SKIP

PB Point is soft on this angle. Tourmaline once the high swamps it. Cliffs aren't clearer. OB Pier isn't the northeast-offshore recipe. Noon near the high plus northwest wind. Anything after dark. Little Point after 5.5 ft.

GOTCHAS

Rip risk is low (NWS). Tide is running about +1.1 versus the table. Northwest wind steps up to ~9-13 kt after noon. Tourmaline mashes near the 5.4 high. Little Point's tide ceiling is 5.5. Pier crowd. Patchy morning fog.
