'IKE · ONE THING TO REMEMBER
Wind writes on the water.
The same swell can be perfect or junk depending on which way the air moves. Onshore wind pushes the crest over before the wave can stand up, so it crumbles instead of peeling. When the wind turns offshore it holds the face open. That is why Tuesday morning, with less swell, will likely surf better than today.

WHERE IT'S WORKING

★ PB Drive — CALL
Soft session only. Mixed swell (SRF 3 to 5 ft, sets 6, from 260° and 200°) under onshore W to SW wind, so expect crumbly, wind-textured peaks. Drive scores 0.71, best of the beachbreaks once Little Point is tossed. The gauge is running about a foot over the table, so wait for the 10:08a high to drain and go noon to 2p, before the wind bumps to SW ~13 kt.

2 PB north of the pier — ALT
Score 0.55. The W windswell half of the mix does reach the pier wedge, but it is wind-chopped. Fine as a backup if Drive is closing out.

3 Little Point — SKIP
Score 0.82 on paper (rising tide, SSW swell), but Gerry overrides. Gauge read 4.8 ft at 7:06a, about 1.1 ft over the table, so it crosses the 5.5 ft ceiling around 8a, and the SW wind is side-onshore on the reef. After the high it falls all day to L 0.0@5:06p, and the 3 ft refill is after the 6:20p sunset. Skip.

4 Calumet — SOFT
Score 0.65. Too full this morning (tide-high flag), and onshore wind on the reef. Soft pass.

5 Tourmaline — SOFT
Score 0.57. High-tide mush plus wind chop. Pass.

- Skip · PB Point is too full (0.38). The Cliffs and OB want offshore and a lower tide, and they get neither today. Scripps and Blacks are not local, and nothing there beats saving your arms for Tuesday morning. SKIP

DRAG THE TIDE

If you go, PB Drive noon to 2p on the Anvil twin. The table has H 5.9@10:08a, and the gauge read 4.8 ft at 7:06a against about 3.7 predicted, so it is running roughly a foot over under the Coastal Flood Advisory (through 2p Tuesday). It drains through the afternoon to L 0.0@5:06p. LJAC1 SW 230–240° at 4–5 m/s (~8–10 kt) at 6:30a. NWS hourly has W 15 mph (~13 kt) early, W to SW 10 mph (~9 kt) from 9a to 1p, then SW 15 mph (~13 kt) from 2p, with a 35% shower chance this morning dropping to about 20% after 11a. Sunrise 6:49a, sunset 6:20p. The better bet is Tuesday morning: PZZ740 has E 10 kt (offshore) with S 3 ft @ 17s, and SRF has 3 to 5 ft, sets to 7.

SKIP

Everything before about noon while it is flooded and the W wind is up. Little Point all day: over the ceiling on the anomaly by about 8a, onshore on the reef, then falling through the low, with the 3 ft refill after sunset. Calumet, Tourmo, and PB Point while it is this full. The Cliffs and OB on onshore wind. Anything after 2p once SW ~13 kt fills in. Anything after dark.

GOTCHAS

High rip current risk today (NWS SRF), with sets to 6 ft. Watch the holes at Drive on the drain. Coastal Flood Advisory through 2p Tuesday: the tide is running about a foot over the table, so the 10:08a high may reach the stairs and seawall. Chance of rain showers this morning (35%), slight chance this afternoon. After rain, check San Diego County beach water quality before you paddle out.
